BOXING SEASON IN SALT LAKE

Manhattan Club's Weekly Boxing Entertainments Scheduled.

Salt Lake, Dec. 8.—The winter boxing season will be ushered in next Monday night at the Grand theatre when Hardy K. Downing will hold the first of the Manhattan club's weekly boxing entertainments. The announcements that this popular club would reopen for the winter made a decided hit with the lovers of the boxing game.

Manager Downing made a ten-strike when he signed up Jess Oren, the elongated youngster who was the sensation of the Manhattan club bouts last winter, and Tom Crawford for the headliner event, as both of these boys are well known to every sport lover in the city and they all know that when they step through the ropes there is going to be something doing every minute of the four rounds. These two boys gave the fans one of the greatest whirlwind battles ever seen at the home of the Manhattan club last winter and the fans have been aching for a chance to see them together again. Both have met a number of good boys since they were seen here last and apparently have improved considerably.

BELL-ANS
Absolutely Removes Indigestion. One package proves it. 25c at all druggists.

They are training hard and will be able to step the distance at top speed. Another bout that promises to be almost as good as the main event will be the semi-windup between Young Maloney, the fast Harman club boy, and Chris Romeo, the Greek boy. Both have appeared at the club a number of times and have a great many friends. Romeo has not boxed here for a year, but when he appeared last he had all of the earmarks of a class boy. He has had a number of bouts in the east since he left here and declares that he has improved a hundred per cent over his last performance here.

Jack Downey, the "white hope" annihilator, as he is sometimes called, is also going to have a tough job upholding his reputation when he meets Jack Dempsey, a big, strong young fellow that battles from the time the gong rings until the bout is over. Downey will be no stranger to the regulars at the Grand, as he stopped a number of aspiring "white hopes" there last winter. He has also been doing considerable boxing since he was last seen here and is determined to clean up all the heavies in this part.

So far Downing has been unable to land a suitable opponent for Kid Emmett, the fast Harman club featherweight, but he says in the event that he does not land one this week he has another good pair of boys who are ready and will use Emmett at the next show.

Cyclone Lefty, an old-time favorite at the Manhattan club bouts will also be seen in action against a newcomer from Portland by the name of Duncan. These two boys will furnish the preliminary.

A pair of unknowns will furnish the curtain raiser and will no doubt furnish more fun than scientific boxing. Downing says his display cards for the opening will be out today and that the seat sale will open Thursday morning at the same places as here.

Fast Pace of Bicycle Riders in Six-day Race

New York, Dec. 7.—Fast riding with Walthour, Spears, Grenda and Fogler setting the pace kept the riders in the six-day bicycle race ahead of the best previous mark. At midnight, the forty-eighth hour, the thirteen leading teams were three miles and eight laps ahead of the record, with a score of 1015 miles 1 lap. The 1000-mile mark was passed at 11:18 p. m. with Walthour leading the field. All the teams which began the grind were still in the race, notwithstanding the fast pace.

At midnight Sullivan and Anderson were one lap behind the leaders, Suter and Madonna two laps. Wohrab and Kopsky and Ruddle-Russe and Vanderstuyf four laps.

OGDEN ELECTRICS BREAK THE RECORD

(By PREXY.)
The howling team of the Ogden Electrics of the Commercial league, established a new record for one game on the Smoky alleys last night by rolling an unusual game, making the record 1,023. The Red Devils of the Commercial league won two out of three games played with the Ogden Electrics. Stevens rolled high game with 235 and Parry rolled a grand average of 607. The games were:

WRESTLING MATCH IS NOT ARRANGED

The proposed match between Jack Harbertson and Joe Turner is all off. From the meeting yesterday, it looks as if Turner does not want to meet Jack at 158 pounds. Harbertson stated that Turner could have the match and could have any terms he desired regarding the gate receipts, but Turner does not want the hard money so he is going after Yokel in Salt Lake. The fans hope him success for if Turner throws the Dutchman, it is a sure thing that Harbertson will. Jack is now in condition and is ready to take on anybody at 158 pounds. He has several good prospects in sight and within the next few days articles should be signed for a match that will be a hummer.

BASEBALL GAME TO BE RETAINED

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Hope of athletes that baseball will be permanently retained as an intercollegiate sport in the western conference grew today with receipt of news that at four of the institutions there is strong sentiment against its abolition, as suggested by the faculty committee at its meeting last Saturday.

The senate of the University of Illinois officially went on record as favoring the retention of the game. Coaching and student sentiment at Chicago, Ohio State and Wisconsin, according to stories here, indicates that these three schools may refuse to follow the faculty committee's suggestion.

Illinois' veto forces a reconsideration of the vote by the conference committee before the universities themselves vote finally on it.

The ruling of the advisory board of the "Big Nine" will not affect the return trip of the Waseda (Japan) baseball team next spring, according to Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago. The Marion team is on its way home from a playing trip to the west.

NEIL LYLE JUDD TO LEAD AGGIE MEN

Logan, Utah, Dec. 7.—Neil (Lyle) Judd will captain the Agricultural college football team next year, according to the classified ads.

ing to the ballot of his fellow football players, who gave him the unanimous choice for that position.

Judd played halfback this year. He started on the line and was shifted back when injuries laid some of the older men out.

Judd started from the first day he was tried out at half, and was never in danger of losing his position there after. He is the Aggie coming closest to receiving honorable mention on all-Rocky mountain selections.

Judd is a sophomore. He is big, husky, and unlike most of the A. C. students, is not a farmer, coming from Salt Lake City, where he first learned football on the old Salt Lake high school team, champions of the northwest. That year he played a guard.

Judd, in addition to being an athlete of ability, is also a student and at no time has been in danger of suffering the rigid requirements of the eligibility committee during the past season.

SCHEDULE OF THE NORTHERN LEAGUE

(By PREXY.)

The games of the northern division of the State High School Basketball league will begin January 7, 1916, according to the official schedule issued by the local high school. Six teams are in the race for the championship of the division, and the team winning will compete with other division "champs" in Provo for the state championship. Ogden high school, Weber academy, Kaysville high school, Box Elder high school of Brigham, Hyrum high school and the Richmond high school are the contending teams. Kaysville is a newcomer in the league, and by making the division a six-team affair, adds considerable interest to the outcome. The league this year should prove to be a great success from the financial standpoint and the race should be close as there are many strong teams in the division. The schedule is:

WILSON NO MAN OF REAL ACTION

Roosevelt Attacks President's Message On Its Weak Utterances.

New York, Dec. 7.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt tonight made a bitter attack on President Wilson's message to congress. He said:

"At the outset President Wilson, speaking of the war, says:

"We have stood apart, studiously neutral. It was our manifest duty to do so."

Further on he says: "We insist upon security in prosecuting our self-chosen lines of national development. We do more than that—we demand it also for others."

Later on he says: "We regard war as a means of asserting the rights of a people against aggression," and continuing, "We are fiercely jealous of aggression from without."

Demands Explanation.

What does Mr. Wilson mean when in one line he says that we have "stood apart, studiously neutral," because "it was our manifest duty to do so," and a couple of paragraphs later says that "We demand security in prosecuting their self-chosen lines of national development for others?"

He can take either of the two positions, but he cannot take both. Did he not say that we were "fiercely jealous of aggression from without?"

Again, he says that he regards war as a "means of asserting the rights of the people against aggression," and yet he says that it was our duty to remain studiously neutral when Belgium asserted the rights of her people by war against the aggression of Germany. How does he reconcile these two statements? He cannot do so. He is using words to cover a policy of dishonorable inaction.

Again, he says that we are "fiercely jealous of aggression from without." How did he show his "fiercely jealousy" as regards the aggressions on the Lusitania and Ancona, which resulted in the loss of several scores of lives and the jeopardy of hundreds of American lives?

"Fierce Jealousy."

How has he shown his "fiercely jealousy" as regards the sixty or seventy soldiers wearing the American uniform, not to speak of the women and children and civilians, killed or wounded on American soil by Mexican bullets?

One symptom of his "fiercely jealousy" to prevent "aggression from without" was the issuing of an order that our men should not fire back when fired upon. Does Mr. Wilson regard that order as "fiercely jealousy" or does it not strike any other human being as such. Three years ago Mr. Wilson said he believed in the policy of "pittiless publicity." We have never had as secretive an administration.

The exact number of soldiers of the United States army who have been killed or wounded by Mexicans cannot be told, because Mr. Wilson won't permit the figures to be made public.

Neither is it possible to obtain the exact numbers of the American men, women and children who have been killed or outraged in person or property in Mexico, because Mr. Wilson for three years has hindered all publicity, pitiless or pitiful, about these outrages in Mexico.

Mr. Wilson's elocution and Mr. Wilson's action are in flat contradiction. His elocution is that of a Byzantine logothete—and Byzantine logothetes were not men of action.

President Wilson says that we have been put to the test in the case of Mexico and have "stood the test" and that we have applied a "heroic principle" to the case of Mexico. Of all possible adjectives that could be found in the English language by the most minute dialectician, it would not be possible to find one more inappropriate to the administration's course on Mexico than the adjective "heroic."

Nearly three years ago Mr. Wilson refused to recognize Huerta upon the ground that we were never to recognize a government founded on violence. He then tentatively supported Villa, who represented the embodiment of violence; it being meanwhile asserted on behalf of the administration that under no circumstances would he deal with Carranza, whose government likewise was founded on violence.

The president has now eaten his words and recognized Carranza, and through his private secretary he has issued a defense of and an apology for the outrages committed by the Carranzistas and by the other bandits of the other factions in Mexico, outrages as infamous as ever were committed by savages anywhere under the sun.

Mr. Wilson refused to employ the power of the United States to protect the lives of American men and the honor of American women or to save those wearing the United States uniform from death or from insult.

Women Not Saved.

He took no steps to save Mexican and foreign women, including nuns—married women and unmarried women—when they were subjected to outrages and infamies which made the white slave traffic seem trivial by comparison. But he now uses the power of the United States to help these infamies against another set. This is Mr. Wilson's definition of "heroic" conduct. It is his conception of "standing the test." Such definitions and conceptions are interesting only from the standpoint of adroit dialectics.

In his present message President Wilson advocates as necessary certain propositions for putting this country in a state of preparedness to defend itself against foreign aggression. In his message one year ago he said such propositions were hysterical and improper. I am glad that he has changed his mind, but I am sorry he has not taken the trouble to study the subject so as to make his proposals reasonably adequate to the country's need.

His proposed enlargement of the regular army is utterly inadequate. With certain of his statements it is almost impossible to deal, simply because it seems incredible that their apparent and obvious meaning can be their real meaning.

For example, he says: "We will not maintain a standing army except for uses which are as necessary in time of peace as in time of war, and we shall always see to it that our military peace and establishment is no larger than is actually and continually needed for the uses of days in which no enemies move against us."

States Absurdity.

What this means I have no idea, and I am certain that no one else has any idea, including the president himself. What necessary use have our forts and our coast guns "in time of peace?" How is our field artillery "continuously needed for the use of days when no enemies move against us?" I ask these questions seriously. I defy any man to give me a serious answer which shall not show that the statements are absurdities.

The proposed "continental" army cannot produce good results. It is a proposal that a few of the young men of the country shall for two months every year abandon their work and in the interest of the common defense train themselves to defend their successful business rivals, who declined to abandon their work in
